DOG DAYS STUFF

By Westa

BOBBY Burns, the Scottish poet, gave voice to the perpetually quoted wish that each one of us might be able to see himself from the other guy's standpoint. Bobby figured, no doubt correctly, that if we could gaze upon ourselves from the other fellow's angle we perhaps would throw out the clutch and slam the brakes on good and hard on those numerous occasions when we go roaring past the red flag of caution and common sense with the throttle wide open and hitting on all twelve cylinders, absolutely bent upon making ourselves resemble that ridiculous bird described in all school books as the jackass monkey.

Nevertheless and notwithstanding, and apropos of nothing in particular, it does no harm to reflect occasionally upon the converse of Bobby's proposition, viz, to try to comprehend the mental picture that the other guy paints of himself. In other words, to try to see him as he sees himself, which, generally speaking, is sympathetically.

Take the professional men here in Shanghai, for instance—the doctors, dentists, lawyers, and perhaps to less extent, ministers.

The rest of us who live way out here on this side of the world, ten thousand miles from where the vast majority of us would like to live and do our work, are under no small obligation to these professional fellows. Considering all the facts, we are lucky to be able to avail ourselves of their extremely necessary services, without which, of course, life out here would be unendurable.

The big, fundamental difference between the professional man's stay out here, over that of almost any other class, is that the professional men have to figure on staying here permanently, whereas the rest of us are practically always figuring on going back home, our mental estimates as to the time of our probable departure being in the ratio of our ant hill salaries to the Himalayan sums the steamship companies demand for ferrying us back.

Not so the sawbones or the molar extractor. Their bread and butter and such jelly and marmalade as they can hope honestly to sink their teeth into, is all wrapped up in their clientele—in their acquaintances. And that is the big difference between them and us. Acquaintances, to the rest of us, are just—acquaintances; desirable, of course, but by no means immediately essential to our daily existence. The rest of us could leave here today and immediately upon our arrival on the other side we could either resume with our old acquaintances, or pick up a new set, taking our own good time in either case, seeing that nothing aside from our personal pleasure would be at stake, and that only to a small degree.

But the professional man, if he were to go home, would practically have to start his life work all over again. He might have the finest sort of a professional reputation out here, but that would avail him little in a community where he was not known professionally. He would be in exactly the same boat as the young fellow just out of college, with his way to make in a strange and hostile world, with competition thicker than Democratic job hunters after the downfall of a Republican administration. In a word, he would have to begin all over again the slow and laborious process of building up a clientele for himself.

The professional man's biggest asset out here—the one that overshadows all others—is his clientele, and since he can't possibly take this asset home with him he has to stay here, as stated, permanently.

The rest of us lose nothing in our work by spending a few years here. On the contrary we gain something that can be cashed immediately upon our return home. The salesman is better off because of his broadened experience and his contact with foreign buyers. The engineer adds something to his technical skill that is immediately marketable upon his return home. The newspaperman can return

U. S. IS BUILDING GIANT DIRIGIBLE AT PHILADELPHIA

New Airship To Take Place Of One Lost In England

(Reuter's Service)

Philadelphia, July 12.—A monster dirigible, the ZR-1, is being built in the aircraft factory of the Philadelphia Navy Yard. It is to be fully as big as the ill-fated leviathan of the air, the ZR-2, which collapsed and fell in flames in England last summer, resulting in the death of more than a score of its crew.

A principal difference between the Philadelphia-built dirigible and that which collapsed over Hull is the strengthening of every second duraluminum ring instead of every third ring as in the ZR-2. This strengthening is accomplished by tying each section of the 25-sided rings (polygons), which will make up the framework, with the strongest possible strands of copper wire. Seventy miles of such copper wire will be used, and the result, it is said, will give the framework a resistance greater even than if constructed of steel. Duraluminum is an alloy of aluminum and copper and is used because of its qualities of lightness and strength.

The envelope will be 700 feet long and 85 feet in maximum diameter. It will be cigar-shaped. The cloth will be of staple back-spun cotton one inch in thickness. A specially devised varnish will make it sun and waterproof. Nineteen balloonets which will furnish the lifting power are being built in Akron, O. These will have a total gas capacity of 2,700,000 cubic feet. It is not considered likely that helium (non-inflammable gas) can be used because of the immense quantity that would be necessary.

Originally the intention was to equip the ZR-1 with seven Liberty engines capable of developing a total of 2,100 horsepower, but navy experts are experimenting with a new type of motor, the specifications of which are not being made public.

When the ZR-1 is completed experts say, it will have power to cruise one-third of the distance around the world without having to descend. It will have a lifting power of 85 tons. The average speed will be 50 miles an hour and the maximum 75.

Quarters for the officers and the men will be along the keelway extending almost the entire length of the ship. They will have a width of eight feet and a height of seven.

German Trade With Britain, £11,000,000

(Reuter's Service)

London, August 1.—Replying to questions in the House of Commons yesterday, Sir Philip Lloyd-Greame, Director of Overseas Trade, said that the value of manufactured goods imported into the United Kingdom during the six months ending June 30 totalled £112,500,000 of which £11,000,000 was of German origin.

Twenty-four ships flying the Soviet flag entered British ports during the past year, of which 15 discharged cargo, principally timber from Russia and Latvia.

PINGCHOW SCENE OF OUTBREAK; 4 POLICE KILLED

Trouble May Hold Up Shipment Of Supplies Needed Here For Road Work

Interruption of shipments from Pinchow of supplies of building materials and products for road making is threatened by reason of an outbreak of widespread strife that developed in the Pinchow district in the week-end and in which four Chinese police officers were killed on Saturday.

The quarries from which Shanghai obtains much of the material with which roadways are built are located at Pinchow. In these some hundreds of Chinese workers are employed under the supervision of several foreign employes of the Municipal Council.

The outbreak developed in the latter part of last week in one of the villages near Pinchow, according to reports that have been received here and after considerable fighting between two factions of villages the trouble on Saturday spread to Pinchow where something resembling a pitched battle was found. It was in the course of this fighting that the four Chinese police officers were killed.

With the purpose of investigating the situation and of giving aid to the foreign supervisors if it is needed Inspector J. Cruickshank and Detective Sergt. R. M. Tinkler, left yesterday for Pinchow in the police launch Pursuit. While the reports received indicate that work at the quarries has been hampered by the fighting it is not thought any general shut-down has yet been brought about.

Astor Guests See Wonderful Dancing

Visitors at the Astor House outdoor pavilion last night were treated to one of the finest exhibitions of classical dancing seen in Shanghai this summer. The artists were Miss Helen Cook and Mr. Cherpino, late of the Russian Grand Opera company.

Miss Cook, especially, gave some interpretations that brought the big crowd to its individual and collective feet. The costumes worn by the artists were beautiful and elaborate, one of Miss Cook's headdresses being at least a yard high.

When Miss Cook dances she dances largely along the lines adopted by that famous canine, Rover, in passing from this troubled world into the confines of dog heaven, namely, to wit, and as follows: "all over" In each of her graceful arms there are numerous little movements that perhaps can be best described with that expressive little phrase, "all their own."

Every action of this wonderful team is the last word in beauty and grace of movement, and to say that they delighted the large audience puts it, as one might say if one wanted to be original "mildly."

Earl Currens had his orchestra all practiced up for the artists, the music being as flawless as the dancing.

All this week.

Dave Lightner, Jail Breaker, Identified By Radio, Taken On Steamer Bound For U.S.

Fugitive Wanted At Portland Who Escaped From American Jail August 19 Boarded West Faralon When It Sailed On Sunday

Radio messages received yesterday disclose that David Lightner who made a sensational escape from the American prison with Ralph S. Boyd on the morning of July 19 is in custody aboard the U. S. Shipping Board Steamer West Faralon that is now en route to San Diego, California having sailed from Shanghai last Sunday.

Messages that passed between the authorities here and the ship tell that Lightner will be turned over to the American federal authorities when the steamer arrives at San Diego and from there will be taken to Portland, Oregon to face charge of violation of the Harrison Anti-narcotic law.

Lightner had been at liberty ten or eleven days before he made his attempt to leave Shanghai, authorities here believe. The West Faralon sailed from Pootung at 1 o'clock last Saturday afternoon but did not leave Woosung until 24 hours later. The exact time Lightner boarded the freighter is not known but he was apprehended Sunday afternoon, when Captain Wark of the steamer immediately notified the American officials in Shanghai and asked for a complete description.

It is a coincidence that C. A. Gallagher, who was in the cell with Lightner and others on the morning that Lightner made his escape with Ralph S. Boyd, former head of a shipping firm here and now facing embezzlement charges, was aboard the West Faralon. When Lightner and Boyd made their sensational getaway by pulling down the plastering in the jail lavatory, working their way under the roof until they came to loose tiles and finally pried their way through the roof, crawling along it to the open window on the third floor of the court building and leaving by the rear door, Gallagher refused to leave. He said at the time; "It was senseless for me to attempt to break jail for I am getting out in a couple of days, anyway."

It is believed that Gallagher helped identify Lightner on the West Faralon. The former was in jail here on drunk and assault charges and last Saturday was sentenced to 60 days in prison, the sentence being suspended because he was to be sent home on the West Faralon.

United States Marshal Thurston Porter took Gallagher, R. C. Nordheim and an American named Jennings aboard the steamer last Saturday, shortly before sailing. Nordheim had been in jail for five weeks for some minor offence and Jennings was also being deported. At the time, Marshal Porter had a long talk with Captain Wark of the freighter and it is believed that Lightner was aboard then.

Yesterday afternoon the United States Consulate-General was apprised by wireless that there was a man aboard the West Faralon who answered Lightner's description. Ten minutes later a complete description of the jail breaker was shot through the air to the steamer where he had taken refuge, and the answer came at noon today that Lightner would be turned over to Federal authorities as soon as the steamer arrived in the United States.

Lightner's capture aboard an American boat eliminates the necessity of extradition proceedings by either the Portland, Oregon, Police, or the American authorities here.

His arrest on the American steamer means another chapter in an adventurous career which caused the police of half the world to watch for the ex-newsboy. With two others, one a former policeman, Lightner is alleged to have confiscated a large quantity of opium from Japanese, after posing as officers of the law. The Portland police claim that when the Japanese resisted, Lightner and his pals murderously assaulted them. The trio was later arrested by bona fide police officers and the drug again confiscated. After arraignment, Lightner was released on bail, only to leave Portland on the steamer Luise Nielsen, which was bound direct for Shanghai.

Portland detectives learned of his getaway and immediately cabled the American authorities here to take him into custody as soon as the Luise Nielsen docked. This was done and the Portland police advised of the arrest. Then came the escape from jail the recapture of Boyd, and now the arrest of Lightner.

DR. KINDLER AND OLDENBURG FINED FOR ARMS TRAFFIC

German Sentenced To Pay $2,000 In French Mixed Court

Heavy sentences were meted out by Assessor Crepin and Magistrate Aleh in the French Mixed Court yesterday morning at the conclusion of the hearing of the case in which Dr. Max Klinder, a dentist, Mr. E. Oldenburg, a German employed in a local import and export firm, and two Chinese, formerly officers in Sun Yat-sen's army, were charged with trafficking in arms.

Oldenburg, who pleaded guilty to having taken an active part in the deal, was sentenced to pay a fine of $2,000 with the alternative of serving fifteen months in jail; Dr. Kindler was ordered to pay a fine for $400, and the two Chinese were sentenced to two months in jail each, with the alternative of paying a fine of $1 for each day of their sentences.

A fifth defendant in connection with the same case, Dudley Warner, an American who was employed as a tea expert in the same firm which employed Oldenburg, pleaded guilty before U. S. Commissioner Lurton Saturday and was fined Gold $100.

Statements introduced in the French Mixed Court yesterday, made by the defendants and three Chinese, gave details of the transaction in which seven German army revolvers were sold to the two Chinese defendants at $180 each. According to these statements, Warner told Oldenburg that he believed that Dr. Kindler had some arms to sell. Oldenburg then went to Kindler at his home on Yates Road. The latter informed him that he had no arms to sell, but that he knew some Chinese who wished to buy arms for Sun Yat-sen's army. The next day, Kindler introduced Oldenburg to a Chinese who acted as go-between. The deal was consummated by the delivery of the seven guns by Warner to a Chinese house in the French Concession.

The French police made the original arrests of the two Chinese, who led them to a house at No. 36 Weihaiwei Road in the International Settlement, where Oldenburg resided. There they, with the Municipal Police, seized two sporting rifles, 3 German army service rifles, and 4,000 rounds of German service ammunition.

Dr. O. Fischer, who appeared for Oldenburg, pleaded for clemency, pointing out that it was his client's first offense and that he did not know that the buyers were not legally authorised to purchase arms. M. Lafranc, pleading for Dr. Kindler, said that he had taken no part in the deal, other than to introduce Oldenburg to the prospective buyers. In its decision, the court ordered the arms confiscated.

Both Oldenburg and Dr. Kindler have been in custody for the past ten days. Dr. Kindler is under bond on another charge of obtaining money under false pretenses. No date has as yet been set for this hearing.

CHINESE BALK AT JAPANESE STAND ON LEASEHOLDS

Tokio Delegates Hold Out For Agriculture Franchise

(Reuter's Service)

Peking, August 1.—A Chinese communique explaining the difference of opinion at yesterday's meeting of the Sino-Japanese Commission says that the Japanese Commissioners desired that the leases of ownership of land held by Japanese at Kiaochao should be continued, if not extended, even after the formal transfer of the administration of Kiaochao to China.

The Chinese, replying, referred to Article XXIV, which provided that "vested rights lawfully and equitably acquired" should be respected, also that "all questions relating to the status and validity of such vested rights acquired by the Japanese shall be adjusted by the Joint Commission."

The Chinese pointed out that some of the lands owned and leased by Japanese are agricultural lands and agriculture is not one of the lawful pursuits permitted the Japanese, as Article XI of the agreed terms of understanding recorded in the minutes of the Washington Conference specifically stipulates that "the term 'lawful pursuit' in Article XXIII shall not be construed as to include agriculture or any enterprise prohibited by Chinese law or not permitted foreign nations by the treaties between China and foreign Powers."

The Chinese again emphasised that the Sino-Japanese Commission would be empowered to review the status and validity of such vested rights.

The Japanese denied that the Commission could exercise such a power of review over the validity of such leases of ownership. They were prepared only to admit its competence as regards the status of the land.

Finally the meeting adjourned with the understanding that the discussion would be resumed.

The Chinese communique recalls that the Japanese note of September last year offered to settle the Shantung question on certain terms, one of which was that Japanese should be permitted to engage in agriculture, but China declined these overtures.

Sakaki Maru Off To Tsingtao On Regular Schedule

No interruption in schedule was occasioned by the mishap in which the Dairen Kisen Kaisha liner Sakaki Maru, ran upon a sandbank at Woosung, Monday morning. The vessel was not damaged, and left yesterday afternoon, as scheduled, on its trip to Tsingtao and Dairen, carrying a full passenger list.

ESTIMATE LOSS IN NANYANG BROS. FIRE AT $5,000

Blaze In Factory Due To Crossed Electric Light Wires

Loss in the fire which broke out early yesterday in the Nanyang Brothers Tobacco Factory was estimated at $5,000 by officials of the company last night. The cause of the outbreak was said to be crossed electric light wires. Damage was confined to the furniture and interior woodwork on the fourth floor of the building, which was used as a workroom and contained no stock.

The Settlement Fire Brigade received the alarm at 12:15 a.m. from the Gas Works, Dent Road Station. On arrival, the brigade found the doors of the building barred and locked. The factory fire brigade had been working on the fire for more than half an hour and were pouring six jets of water into the smoke on the third floor, with the result that there was more than six inches of water on this floor.

As soon as the windows were opened and the smoke cleared, the fire was found to be quite trivial on this floor, though a more serious blaze was located on the fourth floor. Several lines were brought into play, but owing to the smoke and heat it was approximately two hours before the heart of the fire was reached.

Bull Fighting In Mexico Under Fire

Mexico City, July 6.—As the result of a series of newspaper and other attacks against it as the national sport, the future of bull fighting in Mexico is not as certain as its most ardent devotees would wish.

Protests that the spectacles are "barbarous and uncivilised" have been frequently expressed by contributors to local newspapers, and the Council of Culture and Arts recently engaged in heated debate over their continuation. At the last session of Congress a bill was introduced in the Lower House asking for the abolition of bull-fights, but it was pigeon-holed and never came up for discussion. Assurance is given, however, that the bill will be revived at the session of Congress opening in September.

Several clubs and societies in Mexico City have recorded their opposition to the "sport," and they are finding a ready champion in the newspapers El Universal, whose editor, Senor Felix F. Palavicini is unalterably against it. On the contrary, Senor Rafael Alducin editor of Excelsior, is one of its most enthusiastic followers.

PARLIAMENT MEETS, CHANG AGENT TRIES TO DISRUPT IT

Rises In Seat And Shouts "It Is Illegal"

NO WORK BEGUN

No Premier As Yet, Wang Refusing To Serve

BY JOSEF W. HALL
Staff Correspondent the China Press

Peking, August 1.—Many members of the parliament which held its first meeting here today declare that Chang Tso-lin is plotting to obstruct every constructive in China. They cite today's action as proof.

Hsu Kie-yin, a member reported as having been formerly attached to the Canton faction, rising in his seat shouted out that the whole procedure is illegal and traitorous and merely to seek foreign favor. He declared that the Canton parliament and government are the only legal bodies in China. His shouts prevented further speaking. An adjournment was finally taken during which the Chihli members will try to reconcile the various elements.

The Senate announced that a quorum was present, but the credentials of the various members of the upper house may undergo examination. The Senate reported 141 members present, and the house 325, but this was an insufficient number to elect the president or draft the constitution.

The date of reconvening the Parliament is uncertain. It probably depends upon the cabinet's willingness to reinstate Chang Tso-lin's Manchurian offices, thus ending the obstructions in the path of the present government.

The government is without a premier, as Dr. Yen has quit, and Wang Chung-hui refuses to serve during the interim. Both Tsao Kun and Wu Pei-fu favor the appointment of Wang permanently. Their letters to the president declare that Yen is Tsao Kun's sixth choice and Wu Pei-fu's third choice.

Reuter's Version Of The Interruption

(Reuter's Pacific Service)

Peking, Aug. 1.—The Parliament Houses resumed formal sessions this afternoon.

Mr. Wu Ching-lian, who presided over the House of Representatives, of whom 346 were present, briefly referred to the interruption of Parliamentary work in 1916 by the Tuchuns' group. He was delighted to see his brother-members again assembled. They had most important duties to perform, and he was confident that they would carry them out fearlessly and honestly. In addition to the uncompleted work of drafting a Constitution, new problems had arisen requiring the earnest attention and efforts of Parliament. He trusted the members would not be divided by party feelings, but would work as one man for the country's best interests.

At this point an interruption occurred, apparently emanating from visitors. When order was restored the Chairman announced that no formal business would be transacted today. He then invited the members to partake of tea, after which group photographs were taken.

The House then adjourned.

Mr. Wan Chia-hsiang presided over the Senate. One hundred and thirty-eight members were present.

The Chairman also reviewed the interruption of Parliamentary work in 1916, adding that he hoped that the task of completing the Constitution would soon be taken up. No regular business would be transmitted today.

An adjournment was then made for tea and for photographs to be taken.

immediately to a better job than the one he left. And so on down the line. Of all men, only the professional chap finds himself without an immediate market for his services on his return home.

So he has to stick—has to figure on spending all the best years of his life in a country that is ten thousand miles away from the people and the things and the institutions that are just as dear to him as they are to you or me. He has to see his children educated—after they finish the primary and intermediate grades—in schools and colleges thousands of miles away; so far removed that he can see them only once a year, at best, and generally less frequently than that. He has to live, not a few years only, but practically all his mature life in uncomfortable proximity to dangerous and deadly diseases that are apt to strike him or his with fearful and tragic results. He is exiled, not for a few years only, but for most of his life from theaters, lectures, athletic spectacles and competitions, motoring, camping—from all those wonderful pleasures, interests, diversions and opportunities which mankind all over the world, and throughout all history, has so intimately and exclusively associated with that one word—home.

It behooves all of us, therefore, to think kindly of the docs and the bridge builders and the pulpit pounders and the brief writers, trudging daily to the courts with writs of habus corpus and motions of nolly pross under their arms and a neat little speech of objections to his honor, the judge's decisions, on the tips of their tongues, which his worship, of course, will overrule and order counsel to take his seat.

They are a fine lot, those guys; good fellows all of them, and except for their willingness to stick out here all the time in order that the rest of us can stay part of the time, we would all have to march down to the booking offices and buy a ticket home, delaying only long enough to pawn everything we own, and borrow every cent we could, and steal every nickel that wasn't nailed down, thus to accumulate the King's ransom which the steamship companies demand for those necessary documents.

JACK Korff, the well known mountain climber and guide, stopped us on the street yesterday and in that gruff, summary way of his, spoke as follows: "Ho, come with me, and I'll show you the sights of Shanghai, including something you'll say doesn't exist in this neck of the woods."

So saying he led the way into the new Dollar building, which he helped to build, and into the elevator, directing the operator to let us off at the eighth floor, which is all same roof.

Sure enough, there were the sights of Shanghai, all spead out like a map, and reaching miles and miles in every direction. Needless to say we enjoyed the sights to the accompaniment of Jack's explanatory monologue, which embraced a location and explanation of all the places of historic interest.

"And now," said Jack, at the conclusion of the much appreciated lecture, "come with me and I'll show you something extra special." So saying he led the way to the other side of the roof, and pointed off to the southwest.

And there, indeed, was something extra special—nothing less than three high hills, almost what you might call young mountains.

Seeing a real hill, in this town, was almost as good as getting hold of a head of fresh California lettuce.

Many thanks, Jack, old timer, for the sights of Shanghai, including the three high hills.

Allies Turn Down Request Of Greeks

(Reuter's Service)

Athens, August 1.—The British, French and Italian representatives have handed to the Foreign Minister, M. Baltazzi, an identical reply to the Greek note, rejecting the Greek request for free passage of Greek troops to Constantinople, adding that the Commander-in-Chief of the Allied forces at Constantinople has been ordered to oppose any Greek advance.

Constantinople, August 1.—The Foreign Minister has presented a Note to the Allied High Commissioners expressing the hope that all steps will be taken to prevent violation of the neutrality of Constantinople in view of the Greek movements in Thrace. He estimates that 30,000 Greek troops are in Thrace.

The Minister of the Interior announces that he has received formal assurances from the Allied authorities regarding the neutrality of the occupied territories.

Borah In Bitter Attack On American 'Gratuity Policy'--Sees Disaster

(Reuter's Service)

Washington, July 6.—An assault on the fiscal policy of the administration and the legislative program of the majority in Congress was made today in the Senate by Senator Borah, Republican, Idaho. He declared the Government had failed, except in a most limited degree, to relieve the burdens of the people and that there was ahead a program which would add to those burdens not only millions, but billions of dollars. In that program Senator Borah named the soldiers' bonus, which he calculated would cost from $4,000,000,000 to $6,000,000,000; the ship subsidy bill, which he said would cost from $50,000,000 to $100,000,000 a year, while at the same time relieving some special classes of a large part of their taxes; the proposed $5,000,000 loan to Liberia, and the bill to create twenty-five additional federal judges.

"The fact is," said Senator Borah, "the constant increase in Government expenditures has reached the point where is has got on the public nerves, and the people of the country are beginning to manifest it in different ways—sometimes in the ballot box, sometimes in strikes, sometimes in riots and bloodshed—and the first and prime duty of a party which has the future of this country in the absence is at all hazards to refrain from increasing expenditures and if possible decrease them.

"The time may come and, in my opinion, it is very likely to come, when the United States will have to stand, as it were, at the Marne on the question of preserving financial civilization. The time may come when our reserve, economic and financial, will have to be called upon as our reserve of manpower was called upon in 1917 and it behooves the American people and the American Congress to prepare for that as we would be prepared for the great conflict which confronted us in 1917.

"The course which we are now pursuing—the fiscal policies which we are pursuing—will prove more disastrous in the end than a foreign foe. A proud, strong people may offer reverse arms, but time fights on their side for victory. An independent and self-reliant nation may undergo the misfortunes of war, but their character and their purpose win ultimate triumph. But a nation whose citizenship has been drugged and debauched by bonuses, gratuities and subsidies has entered upon a road over which no nation ever has beaten a successful retreat."

Replying to Senator Borah, Senator McCumber, of North Dakota, chairman of the Finance Committee, said "the gloomy visions" pictured by that Senator would be dispelled by courage and intelligence to meet future conditions as they had been met in the past. He took issue with Senator Borah as to the cost of the bonus, saying the treasury actually estimated the cost at about $3,800,000,000.

"In the last three years," Senator McCumber continued, "the national debt has been reduced $3,500,000,000. Conditions are not as gloomy as we would think after listening to the Senator from Idaho. God knows we made enough in this country while the soldiers were fighting to pay the debt we owe them forty times over. Neither do I believe we are going to the "bow-wows" because of extravagance. We are retrenching. We will continue to do so, but we will pay our honest and moral obligation."

STRIKE IN ITALY

(Reuter's Service)

Rome, August 1.—A critical situation has been created by the calling of a general strike, to which the Fascisti have replied, threatening action unless the Government stop the strike in 48 hours.

London, August 1.—A general strike in Italy has been ordered by the Anti-Fascistic Labor League as a protest against the proposed inclusion of the Fascisti and the Right in the Cabinet. The Government have taken every step to cope with the strike which, the opinion is expressed will be a fiasco. It is believed that it is merely due to the desire of the Socialist leaders to allay the discontent of their followers owing to the leaders' countenancing the proposal to form a Coalition Cabinet.

Lighter Coolies Out Demanding Raise Of Thirty Percent

Strike Here Believed Echo Of Recent Hongkong Tieup

The strike here of 240 lighter coolies Sunday afternoon is held, in waterfront circles, to be the first serious local repercussion of the recent tie-up in Hongkong which gravely crippled Eastern shipping from the Hongkong end.

The strikers' demand is for a readjustment of the wage scale to conform to the figures of the Hongkong arbitration award and constitutes an increase of 30 percent over the present scale. The demand has thus far been made only to Chinese shipping concerns and it was believed yesterday that the matter could be settled without further spread of the walk-out. The demand for the increase made by the cargo boat coolies coincided with the circularisation of the shipping companies by the recently established Shanghai branch of the National Seamen's Guild calling for the application here of the terms arrived at in the Hongkong negotiations and it is thought that the action of the lightermen is a concerted move.

The negotiations which are proceeding are thought to indicate an early settlement.

National Troops Capture Tipperary

(Reuter's Service)

London, August 1.—The National troops attacked and captured Tipperary today after a sharp fight. They have thus begun the encircling movement which will compel the irregulars to take up a new line further to the south.

The Nationals were received with acclamation, which is more marked since Tipperary was regarded as the great stronghold of Republicanism. De Valera is at the irregular headquarters at Clonmel.

Train Service On South End Of Peking---Mukden Road Is Nearing Normal

BY JOSEF W. HALL
Staff Correspondent the China Press

Peking, July 29.—With the establishment of a night service between Peking and Shanhaikwan beginning last night, passenger traffic on the southern section of the Peking-Mukden line becomes practically normal. Freight traffic is, however, almost non-existant, very few freight cars being left to the railway and not much demand existing for these few.

Three passenger trains each way per day are now running between Shanhaikwan and Peking, the early morning slow train, the day express and the night express. They are well equipped, carrying buffet cars and sleepers. The addition of the night train will, it is expected, bring back Peitaiho Beach resort, with which all trains connect, to its usual popularity with Tientsin and Peking business men, who can now travel in the night instead of being compelled to spend two days on the road away from their business.

Chang Tso-lin has handed back part of the rolling and has made possible through traffic to Mukden without an overnight stop at Shanhaikwan, through the putting on of a night train between Shanhaikwan and Mukden. The train leaves Shanhaikwan at 9 p.m. The two sections of the railways, fortunately for the travelling public, are recognising through tickets over each issued by the other, but are engaging in childish efforts to bluff the public each with the idea of collecting as much money as possible at the other's expense. Chang Tso-lin's section began it by posting notices that all passengers for points south of Shanhaikwan must buy through tickets from its station agents. The Ministry of Communications retaliated by posting printed announcements to the effect that passengers from this end to points of the northern section are required to buy through tickets at this end under threat that if they do not they will not be allowed to continue their journey beyond Shanhaikwan. The notice is ridiculous and futile, as any passenger who prefers to buy as he goes, can walk over to Chang Tso-lin's ticket office in Shanhaikwan and repurchase for as far as he wishes and the Ministry of Communications has no means of prohibiting his progress.

The traffic manager of the railway states that the greatest lack now is not cars, but locomotives. Engines from other lines are still being employed. Chang Tso-lin carried off nine-tenths of the effective engine power. But it is to be feared that, with all this, the northern section will be in a worse way for locomotive power than the southern, as no regard is being paid by Chang Tso-lin's traffic men to the necessity for regular overhauling. A locomotive is used until it will go no longer, then it is discarded. Again, Chang Tso-lin has no repair shop adequate for overhauling such as the southern section has at Tangshan. It is fully expected by all observers that he will be compelled to ask the South Manchurian Railway to repair his locomotives for him in their works at Mukden. This, in turn is likely to cause political and diplomatic complications, which however, both parties may be willing to brave.

Through Rate To Compete With Suez

(Reuter's Pacific Service)

In connection with the Reuter News Item, dated New York and published today, on the subject of through fares from England to the Orient, we are informed that the new G.$620.50 rate was inaugurated to compete with Suez lines. At the present cross-rate of exchange it is equivalent to about £139. The through rate does not, it appears, cover a Pullman berth across America.

The idea of a through rate is not, of course, new. The Canadian Pacific had it for many years up till the war, during which it was suspended on account of the disruption of all services. It was resumed on April 1, 1922. The Canadian Pacific now have a fortnightly service of the large Empress boats, Pacific and Atlantic sailings being arranged so as to make immediate connections. Pacific, railway and Atlantic reservations may be made in the Orient for Europe and vice-versa.

Five Fined After $15,000 Drug Raid

Five Chinese, arrested in an opium raid at 205 Tong Dong Ka Loong, Hongkew, were fined $20 each in the Mixed Court by Assessor King and Magistrate Li yesterday, and a sixth was remanded under bail of $300, following a plea by Dr. O. Fischer, who represented the men, that they were merely employees and that the police should endeavor to locate the owners. The remand was ordered to give the police time to investigate further.

In the raid, which was conducted by Detective Sergeant Ashley, opium worth $15,000, and several lead discs used in making capsules for the drug were seized. The contraband drug was ordered confiscated by the court.

China Mail Refits S. S. Armanestan

Extensive alterations were made in the Steamers Gorjistan and Armanestan before they were put on the run between Hongkong Amoy, Singapore, Batavia and Sourabaya by the China Mail Steamship Company, according to the local offices of the company.

All of the rooms on the bridge deck of the Armanestan were converted into two-berth cabins. Both first and second class cabins were fitted with electric fans, and the commissary arrangements have been placed under the direction of a European chief steward. Additional baths have also been installed on the Armanestar.

The Armanestan makes the journey of 1,420 miles between Hongkong and Singapore in less than five days. Arrangements are now being made to have an additional port of call at Swatow.

EDITOR FACING LOTTERY CHARGE GIVES OWN BOND

B. F. Brown, Former Publisher Of Paper In Harbin Is Released From Custody

B. F. Brown, form editor and publisher of The Far Eastern Times of Harbin who some days ago was held for trial in the United States Court for China on charges of violation of the American lottery laws, was permitted yesterday to sign his own bond in the sum of $500 and was released.

Application for Brown's release was made by Major C. P. Holcomb before U. S. Commissioner N. E. Lurton and no objection was raised to the request by Mr. Leonard G. Husar, U. S. District Attorney.

The charge against the accused grew out of a circulation scheme Brown is said to have engineered at Harbin in connection with publication of The Far Eastern Times. Papers that were sold bore printed slips carrying numbers and certain of these numbers that were drawn won prizes of ten yen each. As this was held to be a violation of the American lottery laws a complaint was presented and the editor was arrested by an American Consul. He then was brought to Shanghai and at a recent hearing before Commissioner Lurton he was held for trial before the United States Court for China.

Lloyd George Tells Of Warning Greeks

(Reuter's Service)

London, July 31.—In reply to questions in the House of Commons today Mr. Lloyd George stated that the same day the Greek Note with regard to the occupation of Constantinople was received the British representative at Athens in compliance with instructions from London warned the Greek Government of the serious consequences of such a step.

The Greek Foreign Minister, in reply, gave his positive assurance that there was no cause for alarm. The Greek forces would on no account enter the neutral zone without Allied consent.

He had since reaffirmed this assurance, the Prime Minister continued.

The action of the Greek Government was apparently due to its desire to expedite the Near East settlement.

The bursting into flames of a motor truck of the Municipal Isolation Hospital for Chinese caused considerable excitement on Yuen Ming Yuen Road outside the offices of Messrs. Algar & Company yesterday morning. Efforts of the chauffeur to extinguish the blaze were assisted by Mr. A. P. Nazer, of Algar & Co., who appeared on the scene with a fire extinguisher. The fire seemed to have been checked, but shortly thereafter broke out again and a call was sent in to the Fire Department. The truck was moved to Peking Road and the outbreak was definitely dealt with. The fire is believed to have been caused by a cigarette end thrown into the engine, the hood over which had been lifted to allow the motor to cool on.

TWO BOWL RINK TIES PLAYED OFF LAST SUNDAY

BY "THE SHOT"

On Sunday afternoon two ties in the rinks championship competition took place, McMurdo's rink meeting Poignand's four, while Dunlop & Co. met the Juniors rink skipped by McAlister.

The green was lined two deep with partisans from all four clubs as more than the usual interest was attached to the proceedings.

A cloudy sky gave a sense of comfort to spectators and players alike and although rain was always threatening it kept away long enough for both ties to be completed. The greens seemed to be all that could be desired—just enough tickiness to bring out the best from the players.

Taking the Dunlop—McAlister clash first, I must say right here that the juniors exhibition was a disappointment to everyone, opponents included. The team as a whole lacked cohesion and never seemed to be able to get the hang of the green at all. The score of 38-11 is probably a true indication of the game. On the other rink quite a different show was staged and end after end was stubbornly contested, and after one of the finest exhibitions I have ever witnessed the Yangtszepoo team won by the odd point.

Of course the Yangtszepoo team is composed of trundlers who have each a reputation in Shanghai Lawn bowls circles. Alex Macgregor is a singles champion while Fraser Ferier, Geordie McMurdo and Sandy Malcolm have figured in the finals of championship events more times than I can say off hand. As such we expected something above the average from them, but they had to put in every ounce before they extinguished the hopes of the blue and whites.

For second seasons bowlers R. S. Young and J. Wheeler were wonderful, and I am of the opinion, that good as Fraser and Alex Macgregor played, the recs leaders were quite as good. The duel between Geo. Ackerman and Sandy Malcolm was worth going a long way to see, both players being in the picture the whole game. Geordie McMurdo who has been kept out of the game some time through sickness was not as good as I know him to be. Although he played some good shots now and again his judgment was at fault in length and he seemed to have some difficulty when playing short guards. His opponent likewise was off color and I don't remember seeing Tom Poignand play so poorly for a long time.

Now and again he put up a good one, particularly so at the 18th end when I thought he had retrieved himself by playing the winning shot. Laying three seconds Ackerman called for a drive to take the opponents shot. Going down the back hand Poignand made no mistake and took it out with a rocketer, making the score 17-16 in his favor.

At the 20th Geordie made a somewhat similar shot except that it was the Jack that had to be moved. The winning shot was played by Sandy Malcolm who just drew inside one by G. Ackerman and the game ended 19-18 for Yangtszepoo. The winners have now to meet the Juniors rink skipped by J. Burnside when another good show should be the result.

GINK ELECTED BY SILENT VOTE

Roughtown Country Club Members Refuse To Mention His Name

Dear moose:

When my man, the champion golfer of the Automat, breezed down the Roughtown river of gore, he thought Gink was a water lily. My man knicked that golf ball so far it keep everybody broke paying the caddies' way back.

Howzatt?

WARPEN KELLY, N. Y.

We remember your man. He golfed his way into the Automat about the time that Gink was thinking a truck load of cinders was a lunch wagon.

A match was arranged sudden. The wager was one dozen stolen paper napkins against an empty plate. Your man led off with his reckless driver, followed up using his scrap iron and wound up putting with a putty knife.

Gink depended entirely on his spoon. With this one club alone, he won the thirty-six slot championship over the Automat course.

The first hole was pie for Gink. The next was soup. Everything was easy to this imported golfer. Par for the course was one dollar and eighty cents, but Gink did it in a birdie.

Birdie is one below par. Two is an eagle. Three is a cuckoo.

His caddie followed him picking up the crumbs. Gink bunkered himself trying to putt with a lead slug at the nickel hazard. At the water hole, Gink switched to hot coffee.

The proceeds from this famous match went to the starving laundry chauffeurs of Mongolia, which is why they starved.

No matter what Gink tackled, golf, baseball or anything, he always finished first.

He used to finish first in his fights with The Glutt. When Gink laid the cornerstone for the Roughtown Country Club, the building was finished because they didn't have anything to put on it. However, the contents of that cornerstone will flivver down in history.

The Mayor of Roughtown put in a recipe for spaghetti that was strong enough to hang pictures on. His wife slapped in a genuine pearl-less oyster, kissed by the dew and baked by the sun. The Board of Aldermen threw in some rusty whiskers that had strayed from the home beards.

Gink enclosed a sample of Roughtown atmosphere sealed with a kiss. The Glutt donated the look to the cornerstone and picked it later with a hairpin.

The blueprints indicated that after the clubhouse was finished it would be the finest nest the mice ever had.

American School Boy Will Probably Be Given New Chance

Shanghai will meet the U. S. S. Isabel nine this afternoon commencing at 5 o'clock on the Race Course Diamond in the sixth game between the two teams. Shanghai has already beaten the Admiral's yacht's nine five straight but with the larger experience of the sailors and the benefit they have gotten from intensive practice recently it is expected that this afternoon's game will be an even up proposition.

It has not been announced just who will twirl for the local side. Scott, the star of the landsmen, who has borne the brunt of the strongest baseball attack this year will probably not work. He will likely be held over for Saturday's or Sunday's games, possibly against the Peking

Shanghai To Play Isabel Nine Today

Marines who Manager Gallop has invited here for a series. Kingman, another successful moundsman for the local nine will also be held in reserve for the bigger matches.

It is possible that Read Hager, the American School southpaw will do the pitching against the sailors today. The youngster has shown lots of stuff this year, and might have earned a 1,000 percent pitching average in the one game he worked for Shanghai, against the Huron away back in June, had he had decent support.

Manager Callop has not yet reported any further developments as to the probabilities for the opening of a six-game series with the Peking Marines commencing on Saturday. He has wired the northern nine an invitation, but has not up to last night received an acceptance. It is certain however, that, in the event of the Marines failing for the week end, other good matches will be arranged.

Lascars Fare Badly At Egypt Hearing

(Reuter's Service)

London, July 31.—At the resumption today of the inquiry into the loss of the Egypt, the headwaiter, Miles declared that the discipline of the Indian crew was "not very good."

Replying to a question, another member of the crew admitted that there was nothing like order round the boats. Nothing like boatdrill was carried out. The white crew tried to do their duty with regard to lowering the boats.

A stewardess said that she saw boatloads of Indians leaving the ship looking scared. Another stewardess declared that the Indians were panic-stricken and rushed about the decks. She descended a rope into a boat full of men, chiefly Indians. She and a nursing sister each took an oar. She heard shots fired.

A quartermaster gave evidence to the effect that his boat drifted from the Egypt. He and another quartermaster tried to get the boat back but the Indians backed their oars. Another quartermaster said that he found his boat full of lascars and ordered them out but they seemed paralysed by terror. He got away in another boat.

Another quartermaster said that when he returned to pick up the survivors he found a boat laden with Indians and passengers sinking. The lascars tried to rush the rescue boat which, because of this, had to keep away from the sinking boat. Finally however, he was able to rescue the women.

The enquiry was adjourned.

Agricultural Courses Planned For Schools

(Chung Mei Service)

Peking, July 29.—Interest in the problems of agricultural education and the promotion of agricultural science on the part of the Christian Missions and other allied branches of Christian enterprise in North China is being keenly manifested.

This is shown by the recent organisation of the North China Agricultural Association. This new organisation is to include in its membership those who are interested particularly in the agricultural problems of the provinces of Shantung, Honan, Kansu, Chihli, Manchuria, Shansi, Shensi and also Korea. It is planned to make surveys of the agricultural needs and work out a way to meet them.

Studies will be made as to the practicability of introducing agriculture into the curricula of the secondary and common schools and of the development of agricultural extension work. The available literature in Chinese on the subject will be investigated with the idea of starting travelling libraries and in assisting schools in the selection of reference books.

It is planned to hold at least two meetings per year in different sections of North China. Methods and means of teaching agriculture will be an important phase of the work of the organisation.

This getting together of those interested in the subject, is indicative of the way in which the department of agriculture of Peking University (Yen-ching Ta Hsueh) is making itself felt in the social and economic development of North China.

Prof. W. E. Chamberlain of Peking University was elected General Secretary. The Executive Committee is as follows: Messrs. R. N. Lewis and J. E. Lee, Kai Yeng Baptist College; E. Shaw, American Board Mission; W. H. Gleysteen, Presbyterian Mission; G. Davis, Methodist Mission; J. Hunter and Dr. Love, Tungshien School; J. B. Taylor, London Mission; L. C. Porter, Peking University; G. Galley and D. W. Edwards, Y. M. C. A.; J. E. Baker, American Red Cross and J. L. Stuart, Peking University.

FROM THE PLAY THAT MADE AUGUSTUS THOMAS FAMOUS
Made into an absorbing picture under the direction of Hugh Ford it is a tale of old Pike County, Missouri, and has in it power, sympathy and romance. The story of the great love of honest Jim Radburn for the beautiful girl who thought her education was a bar to her love is absorbing in its human interest.
You'll like the picture as well as you liked the stage production.

Chinese Girls Plan Move For Higher Marital Standard

(Chung Mei Service)

Peking, July 28.—Nothing daunted by their sisters who have come out for political participation for women, a group of students in the Peking Higher Normal Girls' School now comes forth with an association for full equality with men.

They are not in sympathy with the first group only they go further in their doctrine, which has been laid down along the following lines:

"All national educational institutions shall be open to women;

"Equal franchise rights;

"Change of laws so that equality shall exist in the rights as between husband and wife, parents and son or daughter, property rights and rights of succession.

They also go after the present marital system which belittles their sex. First under this score they demand a marriage ceremony which will guarantee the woman an equal position with the husband. The taking of a concubine they would have put down as a crime similar to bigamy in the west. They would sound the death knell of prostitution, the slave traffic in girls and foot binding.

Borrowing from the west they advocate the policy of equal pay for equal work and the proper protection of mothers, when the law makers come to deal with the problems of the woman who works for her living.

French Studying Reparation Plans

(French Wireless through Reuter)

Paris, July 29.—The program drawn up by the Minister of Public Work in connection with the works of general utility to be executed by the Germans with German material is now being studied by the department of the Reparations Commission which deals with the matter of restitution in kind.

Exchange Fluctuations

Asia Banking Corporation

August 1, 1922

Spot and forward bar silver were each up ⅛d. in London yesterday. TheNew York price advanced to 69¾ cents and the London-New York cross rate is unchanged at 441¾.

The only change of importance in our official quotations today was a rise in the Franc rate to 950. Our market in the early part of the morning was on the easy side with sellers of Sterling at 3-5 9-16 only and of Gold Dollars at 77⅛.

Some business was done at these rates but later on in the morning the market steadied up and at the tiffin interval there were sellers of Sterling at 3-5⅝ and of Gold Dollars at 77¼ with buyers at 3-5 11-16 and 77⅜ respectively.

In the early part of the morning business in Yen was done at 61 15-16 but at the tiffin interval there were sellers at 61 13-16, the whole undertone of the market at that time being steadier.

In the afternoon the market particularly at the opening was a shade steadier, a fair amount of business in Sterling being done at 3s. 5⅛d. and in Gold Dollars at 77¼. However, there were good buyers of Sterling at this rate particularly for this month's delivery and at the close there were no sellers at better than 3s. 5⅝d.

There were buyers of Franc T. T. at 950 and of Franc Bills at 972 today but there were again very few bills offering. India bought a small amount of silver in London yesterday and the market is reported as steady. New York report their market as dull with more sellers than buyers.

KINGMAN & BROS.
How to Preserve the Teeth

In order to keep the teeth in a good condition scientific precaution must be taken. Through negligence, decay and numerous other affections such as tooth-ache, dental periostitis, esteo-periostitis, necrosis of the jaw, etc., may arise. During the process of ingestion, there are settled on the teeth some deposits of mineral and organic matters, called tartar, which possesses a morbid power of pressing the gum. As an inevitable result of the presence of this tartar, the teeth will become elongated and movable and will, by degrees, absorb away the enamel, leading ultimately to the decay and degeneration of the teeth. The tartar is so hard and resistant to the process of brushing that it cannot be scraped off except with dental instruments specially devised for that purpose.

Dr. KINGMAN offers to the public his service for preserving their teeth at an annual subscription Fee of $10.00 per head to be paid in advance.

The work to be done by Dr KINGMAN to the subscribers consist in:—
(1) Cleaning of the teeth quarterly.
(2) Filling with gold platinum alloy only, when the teeth present holes.
(3) Inspecting the teeth at any time at the desire of the subscribers.

Shantung Leader Asks Co-operation

(Chung Mei Service)

Peking, July 30.—Mr. Wang Ch'ao-yu, a leader of the Shantung Assembly, has sent out a circular telegram calling the people of that Province to rally together for the common good and stop their petty fault finding. "At this time of the Shantung negotiations," he said, "we should be far sighted, and watch the activities in advance so that no regrets will be left afterwards.

"Everyone should follow closely the work done by Dr. C. T. Wang, especially regarding the railway, mines and other properties, where the question of values are so important. Information should be secured on one hand and investigation be made on the other so that reliable data can be given to him."

Mr. Wang Ch'ao-yu says that if the Director General is proved to be acting contrary to the best interests of the people he should be brought to book, but until that is proved, unfair attacks against him should be stopped. The personal opinion given of Dr. C. T. Wang in this telegram reads: "Dr. Wang is diligent and earnest, working the whole day long and discharging his duties faithfully."

The author of the telegram then winds up his appeal for a fair deal for the Shantung Commission by the frank statement that he at one time doubted Dr. Wang's management but as soon as he understood the true conditions, he changed his mind and now does not wish to see Dr. Wang wronged again.

The Japanese Problem And The Protocol

BY JOSEF W. HALL

It is better to relate facts and occurences than to imply motives. However, in international politics, where occurences seldom stand alone and are but evidences of gradually disclosing policies, it becomes necessary to deal with their place in the wider programs formulated, sometimes almost unconsciously, in foreign offices and chief of staff headquarters.

The outstanding feature of Japan's Asiatic policy, disclosed at the time of the negotiation of the Consortium agreement, is that she is willing to allow her interests in Shantung, and other spheres in China, to do without the special assistance of political control or military influence, provided nothing occur to limit such control and influence or prejudice the vested interests of her capitalists in Manchuria. That Japan would, if compelled, give up everything else but never Manchuria was made more clear at Washington. And now it appears that Japan will even withdraw from Siberia provided her grasp upon northern Manchuria is clinched, and Russia will undertake to do nothing endangering her hold there.

The Through Traffic Protocol between the South-Manchurian line and the Chinese-Eastern line constitutes a further step toward the evolution of Japan's Asiatic policy. The great object of Japanese concentration on Northern Manchuria and Eastern Siberia has been, without secret, the control of the Chinese Eastern Railway. Although Japan does not yet control the administration, it may be said that the protocol gives her control of the traffic, and the financial arrangements provide her what amounts to capital interest.

The traffic contract has one weak point in that it was only drawn for a period of one year—a stipulation insisted upon by the opportunistic Chinese. The financial obligations undertaken by the Chinese Eastern Railway, however, will not be easily discarded at the end of the year, and may presumably afford a lever for compelling the indefinite renewal of the contract. If Japan can bring about such renewal it may be said that her purpose in regard to the Chinese Eastern belt is potentially realised. While the present traffic arrangement holds, the railway is bound to become more and more an integral part of the South Manchurian Railway system. It will not be so easy for the Chinese to revoke the agreement as they may think, when Russia is once more settled and Vladivostok once again begins to look more alluring than Darien to the C.E.R.R. management. The Chinese should have had it proved to their satisfaction that Japanese interests are more easily invited than dismissed. Yet they will continue to take the risk.

It is futile to argue the morality—the goodness or badness—of such developments. The amalgamation of the Chinese Eastern into the South Manchurian carrying system will doubtless do much for trade and economic development in this part of the world. China has had her opportunity—a marvellous bounty of the Gods—she has frittered it away, and deserves no tears. It is a waste of emotion to give vent to indignance over such things. Here, as elsewhere, let the fitter survive, and blame not Heaven and friendly humanity for ultimately tiring of him who will not or cannot take himself in hand.

China has her own way of preserving herself—it is not our way, but it seems to be more effective than our way: although we would rather perish than be preserved in such a manner. The most pathetic sight in history is that of the kindly westerner mourning over the apathetic Chinese who, instead of worrying about himself is wondering how to capitalise this excess of sympathy. If these developments affect self-interest that is, of course, another question. I believe that the great powers of the world have already decided that Japan's absorption of Manchuria is inevitable and of not sufficient moment to them to make opposition worth while.

There remains the question of how Japanese success in plans regarding the Chinese Eastern affects contemporary plans for economic occupation of Manchuria, such as the construction of branches and extensions of the South Manchurian line. The five year program of the South Manchurian Railway, already two years under way, provides for the expenditure of 425,000,000 Yen. Of this 106,000,000 has been spent, and 320,000,000 remains to be spent (speaking approximately). 151,000,000 Yen of the original sum is designated for "improvement and purchase of track and cars." Obviously, there is not room for the use of a tithe of this amount in improvement and supplying of additional equipment for the present excellently equipped seven-hundred miles of road. Since there is no item for railway extensions or branches, it is to be inferred that the track to be "improved" is extraneous to the present seven-hundred miles, and the cars to be purchased are for needs not now existant.

Ninety million yen of the original sum is designated for the development of the Railway's coal deposits, and forty-seven million for enlargement of Darien harbor, the necessity for which becomes more apparent in the light of the Protocol, which given to Darien in addition to its own trade the business of the port of Vladivostok.

Where this money is coming from is a question, but the Japanese government always seems to have the required funds for empirical enterprises. The Japanese endeavor to float a loan in New York, on the security of the South Manchurian Railway, for Yen 500,000,000 (later cut down to Gold $180,000,000) is, according to the statement of the Manager of the Yokohama Specie Bank in Peking, temporarily in abeyance. The latest announcement of the South Manchurian Railway in regard to financial affairs is that it will issue debentures for popular subscription.

The balance sheet of the South Manchurian road showed a total last year of 720 million Yen: an increase of forty million two-hundred thousand dollars over the preceding year. At the same time the increase in capital was forty-four million, or several million more than the increase in the balance sheet total. This would tend to show that the whole increase went into property investment.

During the past year construction work has been carried forward on a branch of the South Manchurian from Changchun to Taonan, skirting the Sungari River above Harbin; and a branch from Szupingkai (a little south of Changchun) to Liaoyuan, with an extension seventy miles up the Liao River (this extension is not provided for in the Consortium agreement as are the Changchun-Taonan and Szupingkai Liaoyuan branches, and would seem to be in disregard of it). The Szupingkai-Liaoyuan branch is generally known as the Szupingkai-Taonan, as it is surveyed to turn Northward from Liaoyuan (Chengchiatun) to Taonan, forming, with the Changchun (Kwanchengtze) Taonan branch, a triangle, the short base of which is the main line between Changchun and Szupingkai. Recent Japanese reports are to the effect that since the outbreak of the Chihli-Fengtien strife work on these branches has practically ceased. The work, it must be remembered, is nominally being carried out under the Ministry of Communications in Peking, represented by a Chinese Director-General, although the money and effective engineering skill are supplied by the South Manchurian Railway administration at Darien.

When Minister Gao En-hung took over the Communications following the Fengtien defeat, one of his first acts in connection with his retrenchment policy was to dismiss the superfluous "Presidents" and "Directors-General" of these little branches, placing all responsibility with the Chinese Managing engineers. This gave these men the opportunity to do what they would have done anyhow; to declare "independence" of the Ministry and allegiance only to Chang Tso-lin's new railway administration. Under such conditions it would not be difficult for the Japanese to further construction if they so desired. But with the Chinese Eastern line, its wharves at Harbin, and its steamer connections on the Sungari working for the South Manchurian Railway in consequence of the protocol, it is reasonable that Japanese interest in these branches, should lag.

The main purpose of the Changchun-Taonan line, surveyed as it is on a sweeping semi-circle North to the Sungari River, would seem to be to tap that river above Harbin and gather the river trade there should access at Harbin be denied. Since the river branch and wharves of the C. E. Ry. at Harbin, a far better situated and already developed river port, are now at its service, why should the South Manchurian Railway further prosecute this second best plan?

Household Hints

Take some dates, remove the stones and put blanched almonds in their place. Dip the dates in white of an egg and roll them in desicated cocoanut. Pile on a small dish, and decorate with glace cherries.

To remove stains from a leather bag, apply the white of an egg, let it dry in the sun, and then rub it off. A paste made of dry mustard, potato meal, and two spoonfuls of spirits of turpentine, applied to the spot and rubbed off dry, will also be found to answer the purpose.

If you wish to iron a rough dry article in a hurry, sprinkle it well with cold water, then roll up tightly and place it in a dry cloth. Put it into the oven, which should be warm but not too hot, and by the time the irons are heated the article will be damp all over, and just right for ironing.

Few vegetables are so well adapted to cooking in various ways as celery, every part of which can be turned to good account. A nice supper dish is made by putting cooked rice, pieces of parboiled celery, and white sauce into a dish, sprinkling with browned crumbs, and baking in a sharp oven till brown.

A black straw hat may be made to look almost quite new by the following treatment. Rub some olive oil well into the straw with a brush. Then dry, and you will be delighted with the result.

In spite of all old-fashioned people may say, washing blankets does not improve them. It is real economy to send them to the dry-cleaners, whence they will return like new, instead of yellow and hard, as laundries are apt to make them.

Disagreeing Agreeably

BY DR. CHARLES FLEISCHER

It is well to be so sure of your point of view that you can disagree agreeably with those who do not share that viewpoint.

Intolerance is one of the most despicable of human failings. Its only redeeming aspect is its evidence of interested devotion to the ideas and principles involved.

We cannot progress very fast or very far on the basis of indifference.

It is necessary that we feel and care deeply. Otherwise ideas, principles, causes would lack the substantial support of militant enthusiasm, without which even patriotism and life itself could not be maintained with the needed virility to assure their continuance.

You must, of course, believe in your opinions and be ready to back them with some show even of combativeness.

Pretty much, like Pat, engaged in hot debate. Duly he brought up unconquerable reserves, when he shouted: "Them's my opinions—an' I shares 'em."

If you don't agree with yourself, obviously sharing your opinions, earnestly bringing yourself and your all to the support of your view, how can you expect for them the respect and sympathy of others?

To be a protagonist of a certain viewpoint naturally makes you an antagonist of the contrary position.

This healthful difference of opinion makes horse races, stock markets, choices of friends and spouses, espousals of party and sect, and even the loyalties of religion and patriotism.

It is at least an indication of human evolution that most of us can differ decently on most of the varieties of human interest and relationship.

Even in religion it has become possible for men and women to disagree agreeably, no longer thinking it a proof of loyalty to a particular faith if we hate those of different faith.

On the contrary, we have learned to love one another, despite even this fundamental difference.

Alexander Pope once formulated this triumph of good-will in his famous couplet: "In faith and hope we still may disagree, but all mankind's concern is charity."

However, one may not be so optimistic on the score of charitable disagreement as to ignore the present and prevalent inability to tolerate differences of economic opinion and theory.

We have made the acceptance of capitalism the modern test of orthodoxy.

For every reason of human decency and social self-interest, we shall have to evolve in this regard also and learn to disagree agreeably.

We must not continue to ostracize or otherwise to persecute the individual, group or nation that dares to differ from the conventional economic theory or practice.

Herin, too, we must rise to the serene height of that self-assurance and come to the level of that passionate tolerance which once enabled Voltaire to say to an opponent:

"I thoroughly disagree with what you say, and I will defend with my life your right to say it."

Geniuses Made To Order

BY WM. GEORGE JORDAN

At a recent meeting of the Allied Medical Association of America, Dr. Alzamon I. Lucas, founder of vocational therapy, told the assembled doctors, in all seriousness, that it was an easy matter to fix the sex of the unborn and to determine its career.

It must be understood that he means not merely foretelling, but absolutely ordering from Nature the sex desired. We will no longer have to accept the six of our children table d'hote, or as they are served to us, but order them a la carte to suit our whim.

The secret of predetermining the career of a child unborn is for the parents to concentrate mind and heart upon the vocation desired and also to practise it to a certain extent. If a musical career is the sentence of the unborn the mother must perform several times a day on some musical instrument, whether she knows how to play it or not.

Here is the power of thought theory worked out with a vengeance. Think just what you want and your baby will have it. Make your mental blue-prints and the child will conform to them. All the myriad subtle forces and hidden elements of heredity are to be mobilised, silenced or transformed at the mere will of the parents. Such wild sensationalism hurts all science.

We condemn a father who attempts to force a son with a genius for art to follow the business career his father has elected for him. It is worse to doom the unborn. Blundering, foolish parents, if the Lucas theory were true, would arrogantly and imperiously usurp the individual's birthright, to form his own life in harmony with his own ideals, powers and ambition.

To get a Charlie Chaplin we might lose a Shakespeare; we might sacrifice a Columbus to add a shop-keeper to the world; spoil a Newton to create a farmer. Nature does not bring her geniuses forth from the nothingness, or even give talent or special ability, in answer to vain babblings of human will. S. z

A generation or two of experiment on thousands of cases scientifically authenticated might entitle Dr. Lucas to be taken seriously in vindication of his theory.

If her or anyone else can tell us how to endow our children morally and spiritually, make them well and strong in body, clear in mind, fine in character, noble, just, unselfish, guided and inspired ever by the highest and best, let him speak.

Has A Tree Personality?

BY HENRY S. WILLIAMS

A tree grown from a seed and having roots and trunk and branches that get larger for a term of years and then dies might be thought of as having an individual personality. It is a living thing, and apparently a unit structure. Yet it is possible to juggle with the personality of this individual in a curious way.

For example, you may cut a twig from the tree, and graft this twig on the branch of another tree; and the transplanted twig will live and flourish under favorable conditions, and appear to become a component part of the tree upon which it has been grafted. But the transplanted twig, and all the branches that may grow from it, will maintain the characteristics of the original tree, although gaining nourishment from a tree of quite different origin.

These facts are familiar enough to anyone who has had experience as an orchardist. In the cultivation of fruit orchards, grafting is a method universally employed. It is nothing unusual to see apples, for example, of several quite different kinds, growing on the same tree. The grafted limb may have coalesced so fully with the foster parent that you cannot see the point of juncture of the two; yet the leaves put out by the transplanted limb, and in particular its fruit, may be as different as if grown from separate roots.

This process of grafting may be continued indefinitely. A twig may be taken from the transplanted limb that is now flourishing on foster roots quite as well as from the original tree; and there is no apparent limit to the number of times this process may be repeated. Twigs from old trees may be grafted on young roots, and may flourish there long after the tree from which they were taken has perished. An entire orchard, may thus be developed from a single original grafted tree; and each and all of the new branches will continue to bear fruit precisely like that of the original tree.

So there you have a very pretty puzzle. Is the apple tree that grows in your dooryard an individual personality, a unit structure? Or is it only part of an individual—one member of a complex body with thousands of other members in various parts of the world?

I venture to predict that the more you think about that problem the more puzzling it will become. The facts are clear enough, but their interpretation is difficult. There is no analogy in human experience that supplies us with a ready solution of the problem of the personality of a grafted tree.

A Purity Standard

BY DR. WM. A. McKEEVER
Widely Known Lecturer and Author and a National Authority on Juvenile Problems.

Fifty business men, a civic club, sitting at their customary weekly luncheon, gave heartiest applause to this statement when made by one of their officers in the course of an address:

"You will remember that the standard of purity of the public utterance of our members is gauged by the innocent heart of childhood. We are solemnly pledged not to tell any story or use any language which would be considered inappropriate in the presence of the ordinary boy or girl."

"Cut it out, man, here comes a kid." Thus an uncouth coal miner admonished another of his class whose habitual speech was top-heavy with careless oaths and coarse invectives.

"After children come into a man's family he can be depended upon to behave more carefully both in his speech and action," exclaimed the father of three promising little ones with whom he was out for a frolic upon the lawn.

"Before making a serious statement or expressing merely an opinion, I am inclined to consider how it would sound to the critical attention of my pupils," said a fifth grade teacher whose world of thought seemed to be inhabited chiefly by the growing members of society.

In the foregoing disjointed statements we may detect what seems to be one of the deeper tendencies of our common adult behavior; that is, to defer to the little, unspoiled child. It is not merely the refined and the thoughtful person, but even the coarse man seems to be awed into a kind of reverence when in the presence of happy childhood.

What we have here, as a matter of fact, is the inherent purity and guilelessness of the unsophisticated young personality. Until they learn the worse things from their elders, the little ones possess neither knowledge nor intention of wrong. Their limited world is for the time being one of perfection and righteousness.

The question might well be raised here, 'Why should the children necessarily become acquainted with any evil at all?" And the reply is, they should not; but, who can prevent it? There has been a somewhat careful estimate that the young invent one-tenth the wrongs they commit—or stumble upon them by accident—and that they learn nine-tenths from others.

The instances given above of the refining influence of the presence of the child upon the conduct of adults are significant of what may be done to capitalise such a subtle force for good upon a large scale, and here is the method:

Teach everyone definitely how to see and appreciate the inherent goodness in normal childhood and how to help bring that inheritance into reality through right example and precept. Thus make everyone an admirer and a lover of the little ones about them and society will slowly be reformed. "A little child shall lead them."

What The Circling Of The Stars Reveals

BY GARRETT P. SERVISS,
Eminent Astronomer and Authority on Subjects of Scientific Interest.

Below is a question interesting to everybody because it involves the marvellous remoteness of the stars and the measurement of the awful gap of space that separates them from our sun and its planets:

"During the night the stars appear to swing about the north star. Now, since this point in the sky is not in a direction at right angles with the earth's orbit would not the north star encircle once a year a point that is actually at dead center with the sun and the earth's orbit? 'A' says no; 'B' says yes.—W. H. D., Boston."

The point in the northern sky "at center with the sun and the earth's orbit," is the north pole of the ecliptic, the ecliptic being the projection on the sky of the plane of the earth's orbit. Now, the north pole of the ecliptic is situated about 23½ degrees south of the north pole of the equator, which represents the point where the earth's axis of rotation extended would pierce the sky, and whose situation is approximately marked by the north star, or Polaris. The ecliptic pole is in the constellation Draco, more than half way from Polaris to a conspicuous lozenge-shaped figure northwest of the bright star Vega.

In consequence of the rotation of the earth, all the northern stars seem to swing once every twenty-four hours around Polaris, which stands, apparently motionless, over the pole of rotation. This revolution of the heavens is quickly noticed by anybody who watches the stars for two or three hours, because in a single hour they describe 15 degrees, or 1-24th of the entire circle. The point in the sky where the north ecliptic pole is situated, of course share in this apparent daily revolution around Polaris. We refer this motion to the horizon and the meridian.

But there is another, slower, revolution of the heavens, due to the earth's annual revolution around the sun, and taking place about the axis of the ecliptic, parallel to the apparent motion of the sun. In this case it is the motion of the sun that is observed, while the inside of the sky dome, spangled with the stars, stands fast. Thus what would be an apparent yearly revolution of Polaris about the ecliptic pole, with reference to the position of the sun, becomes an apparent revolution of the ecliptic pole about Polaris.

At midnight in June the pole of the ecliptic is seen high above Polaris toward the zenith; in September it is seen off to the west of Polaris; in December it is below Polaris, near the northern horizon, and in March it is off to the east of Polaris. Thus it appears to circle all around Polaris in the course of a year.

There is a real revolution of the pole of rotation (not of Polaris) around the ecliptic pole, due to the procession of the equinoxes, which takes 25,800 years for a circuit. In consequence of this, Polaris will, in time, be far away from the true north pole, though not, in the meanwhile, changing its distance from the ecliptic pole. For our descendants of a few thousand years hence Polaris will not be the "north star," but will have been left behind by the revolving pole.

But there is another apparent revolution affecting the stars which has a still greater interest because it forms the basis for measuring their distances. This is the sky in the form of minute circles, described once every year by all stars that are near enough to present a measurable parallex.

These are called the "parallactic orbits" of the stars, and their centers of motion are the poles of the ecliptic. If a star is near the ecliptic pole, its parallactic orbit becomes a circle because, seen from the earth the star lies on the axis of the annual revolution, and its orbit is seen at right angles.

If the star lies somewhere between the ecliptic pole and the ecliptic its parallactic orbit is seen at an angle to its plane, and therefore assumes the form of an ellipse, of greater or lesser eccentricity according to its distance from the ecliptic. If the star lies right on the ecliptic its parallactic orbit is presented edgewise toward the earth, and appears as a straight line, the star being at opposite ends of the line at opposite times of the year.

Now, the angular diameter of the parallactic orbit of a star is equal to that which the actual orbit of the earth would subtend if seen from a distance equal to the distance between the star and the earth. Since we know the actual diameter of the earth's orbit, viz., 186,000,000 miles, it is evident that we have in the parallactic orbit of a star a means of determining its actual distance in miles.

For convenience, in this calculation, the radius of the parallactic orbit (then called simply the parallax) is compared with the radius of the earth's orbit, which is the same thing as the distance of the earth from the sun. Suppose the parallactic orbit is observed to have a diameter of a second of arc; then its radius will be half a second.

This shows that the radius of the earth's orbit (93,000,000 miles) seen from that star would be half a second of arc. But, by "radian measure," half a second corresponds to a distance of 412,000 times the linear dimension of the object, and 412,000 multiplied by 93,000,000 gives 38,316,000,000,000 miles as the star's distance.

Canton Disgusted By Constant Wrangling

(Chung Mei Service)

Peking, July 30.—Eye witnesses of the business stagnation in Canton say that it is almost complete. The people have lost their interest in all the political line-ups and their problem is how to protect their life and property from the thelving and looting that is all around them. Previously it was felt that popular sentiment was strong in favor of General Chen Chiungming and his aims but after suffering at the hands of his troops, they are beginning to change.

On the other hand, the foreign sympathies were considered to be slightly with Dr. Sun Yat-sen. His recent activities in firing on the unprotected city and hitting foreign property has alienated a little of his support from that source.

Meantime business remains dead while the outcome of the greatly advertised battle between General Chen's troops and those of General Hsu is in the balance. There seems to be no doubt that if General Chen wins, Dr. Sun looses and must get out.

Chang Still Trying To Regain His "Face

(Reuter's Service)

Peking, July 29.—The people of fifty-two hsiens in Fengtien province headed by the members of the Fengtien Provincial Assembly have telegraphed to Peking contending that as the mandate dismissing General Chang Tso lin was issued by the former illegal president, and since the legal President and Parliament have now been reinstated, the mandate in question is null and void and an announcement to that effect should be made officially.

Tung Kang Scrapes Up Nearly A Million

(Chung Mei Service)

Peking, July 29.—With a Government living from hand to mouth in the way the present Chinese one is compelled to do, the most pressing problems are always the present ones. Therefore, the larger debts facing the Minister of Finance were not half so bothersome as the two comparatively small items of $500,000 to be met in August for the redemption of the redeemable notes issued to tide over the last Dragon Boat Festival, and the $2,000,000 interest due on the ninety six million dollars worth of loan bonds.

Although Tung Kang is on leave of absence he apparently has been working toward the solution of these immediate difficulties. At today's Cabinet meeting his report was read and approved.

It appears that he has secured a loan on very favorable terms from the Russo-Asiatic Bank for $200,000. To cover the $2,000,000 interest, he has secured from the Bank of China and Bank of Communication $600,000.

The Yokohama Specie Bank has released some $500,000 from the salt funds, and from other sources he has produced over $900,000. These sums will be sufficient to handle the crisis and things can go merrily on till the axe falls again.

U. S. Asks Britain's Help On Dry Laws

(Reuter's Service)

London, July 31.—With the object of coping with liquor smuggling, the United States has made a tentative suggestion to Great Britain that reciprocal arrangements should be entered into to extend the limit of territorial waters to 12 miles, accompanied by the right to search vessels.

Mr. Lloyd George in the House of Commons today stated that these proposals were being given attention.

French To Apply Screws To Germans

(Reuter's Service)

Berlin, July 31.—A French Note specifying the terms indicated in M. Poincare's reply to the German Ambassador at Paris on July 28, requesting a reduction of the instalments payable to Germany's private creditors, has been received.

It gives Germany 10 days in which to signify future continuance of full payments and states that on the alternative certain fixed measures will automatically be applied.

A very serious view is taken of this communication in consequence of the imminence of the Allied conference in London.

Cabinet Approves Education Increase

(Reuter's Pacific Service)

Peking, July 29.—The Acting Minister of Finance tabled a memorandum at the meeting of the Cabinet this morning dealing with funds for education.

The memorandum pointed out that the resolution increasing the education fund to $290,000, a month, to be drawn from the Chinotungpu, was only a provisional measure, and suggested that funds to that amount should be drawn from the increased customs revenue as soon as such was available. The Cabinet approved.

NORTHERNERS IN KIANGSI TELL OF VICTORIES GAINED

(Chung Mei Service)

Peking, July 28.—General Tsai Cheng-hsun, commanding the Northern troops in Kiangsi has wired of victories gained over the Southern Expeditionary forces. He also mentions that a part of the troops recently moved from Yochow are on the way to reinforce him.

In this connection, General Chang Fu-lai, commander of the Yochow garrison, has issued a circular telegram on the event of the withdrawal of his forces from that place. He recounts:

Ever since the establishment of the Republic, China has been the scene of constant fighting. Last year when war broke out between Hunan and Hupeh, I was appointed to the post of Commander in the field of the reinforcements to Hupeh. General Wu Pei-fu fortunately gave the people of Hunan the right to govern themselves and the war ceased and peace was restored through the justice of General Wu.

"My troops and I have been stationed on the Lake for nearly a year and I have tried to act frankly and control my men. Now we come to the dawn of hope for constitutional government and the unification of the country. I do not know whether the leaders of China want to establish peace or not. I have just read the Presidential Mandate directing that all troops be removed from Hunan and Hupeh immediately and the task of maintaining order turned over to the local police.

"This indicates to me the frankness of our President, and I will do as I am commanded. In addition, I have telegraphed General Wu and Tsao asking that they cancel my orders as Commander in the field. I will move my troops north on the 27th instant. They will go to Chengchow (Honan) for further training.

"I make this appeal to all the gentry of China to give up their own interests for the sake of the country which is at its last breath."

Tung Kung Going To France, Report

(Dah Tong News Bureau)

Peking, July 30.—It is reported that Mr. Tung Kang is going to France to continue the negotiations begun by Mr. Chu Chi-chien for borrowing 30,000,000 francs. The security will be the materials already purchased by a certain tramway service. The capitalist will be granted the option to construct the tramway lines and to administer the service.

Mr. Yen Chu is urging Tung Kang, to tender his resignation, but not to proceed to France. Mr. Tung is asked to use the money he originally intended for travelling and other expenses for payment of the salaries of the members of his Ministry and thus erect for himself a statue of everlasting memory.

Reports His Death Much Exaggerated

(Rosta News Agency)

Moscow, July 25.—General Slashcheff, formerly a prominent member of Wrangel's staff, who returned to Russia some months ago, has published a letter in the Moscow press, saying:

"I have just now heard rumors distributed in the foreign papers that I was shot dead in Soviet Russia. I think that reasonable men will not believe and those knowing me will easily understand it.

"I warn everyone that I am prepared to defend the Russian Socialist Federal Soviet Republic, and in the event of an attack on her, I will prove the matter by force of arms."
